Message

Let us look for a moment beyond school days, the period of preparation and training. What are the resources of heart and mind that you will need to qualify for "the brave new world" of your hopes and dreams? Skills and knowledge, some understanding and appreciation of our great cultural heritage through the study of history and literature, the capacity to see "the world feelingly", I hope. But most important, I am sure, some sense of direction - a chart and a compass - some guiding principles derived from our cultural heritage.

Matthew Arnold wrote a century ago,

"Most men eddy about
Here and there - eat and drink,
Chatter and love and hate,
Gather and squander achieving
Nothing; and then they die -
Perish! and no one asks
Who or what they have been."

No normal youth wills to be nameless and null. The thoughts of youth are long, long thoughts and compass years on years ahead. Given time and the inspiration of great examples they can rise above the small and petty to great and noble hopes.

The process by which we discover values and beliefs necessitates searching and striving for personal answers to the fundamental questions of life. "What kind of people does it take to create "a brave world"? What must they have?"

Surely some clues to the answer can be found in the writings of the saints and philosophers. Experience will bring discernment and judgment to your understanding and evaluation of old guide lines.

"The will is free:
Strong is the Soul and wise, and beautiful;
The seeds of god-like power are in us still.
Gods are we, Bards, Saints, Heroes if we will."

Editor's Message

It is very difficult to put into a few words the insight we have gained and the knowledge we have acquired from working on this year's Spartalogue. We have not done this alone. Our efforts would have been in vain had it not been for the help of the Spartalogue Staff, the advisors, Mr. Elliot and Mr. Dowding. We would like to express our appreciation and gratitude to these people.

We have enjoyed compiling the events of the past year for it will be a memorable part of our lives. We hope this book proves to be as rewarding for you to read as it was for us to develop.

Valedictory Address

"THE SPARTALOGUE"

Mr. Steadman, Honoured Guests, Teachers, Fellow Graduates, Ladies and Gentlemen,

First of all, I must express my appreciation for being given the honour of representing the class of 1965 here this evening. I only hope that my words will express the thoughts and emotions of each member of the graduating body.

For us, tonight is the night of nights, the feather in the cap, the pat on the back. Tonight is the result of hard work, the rewards for a job well done. Tonight is the goal of all our efforts, our late hours of study, and, yes, perhaps our blood, sweat, and tears for, tonight is our commencement.

Graduation means different things to different people. It symbolizes the end of one more segment of our career and the beginning of another. For some, it means the commencement of comprehension at an institute of higher learning; for others, it signifies the initiation into the working world. No matter which we are entering, there is a certain degree of preparedness essential for success in these fields. One must be aware of the ways of the world, and have an open, inquisitive mind, ready to try to understand our new environment. In a sense, we are like newly-hatched chicks freshly thrust into the world. We have left behind the safe shell of our adolescence, and now face reality with blinking eyes. It has been forecast that in the next decade, the quantity of knowledge in the world will multiply four times, and, thus, the ability to perceive and understand becomes very real and necessary to us. This ability has no doubt been instilled in us during our stay at Forster.

And, of course, those mainly responsible for this were our teachers. It was only they who could guide our thinking processes and teach us to have this open, but critical mind. As you all know, the task of being a teacher is by no means an easy one, and I can assure you, the class of 1965 did not make teaching any easier during the year. Often our teachers had to use a quick temper, a long arm, an eagle eye, a stiff back, and a harsh tongue to keep us in line and still end up with the daily lessons taught.

Over the years, in fact, we found that several of our teachers had other ways of quelling disturbances and maintaining order. For example,

1. a certain history and music teacher had a bad habit of hitting people on the head using a drumstick, and blessing them in the name of Allah.

2. a certain English teacher on the second floor had a bad habit of leaving the windows of her room wide open even in the winter, to keep us awake.

3. a certain science teacher in the lower grades accused students of insubordination.

4. a certain physics teacher had a bad habit of throwing darts at students in the front row.

Other teachers, though, we had more control of. For example,

1. We had an English teacher who organized dancing lessons for us last year.

2. we had a chemistry teacher who did not even get mad when one of our classmates decided to write on the blackboard - with nitric acid.

3. and we even had it arranged last year, with one of the math teachers, who wishes to remain anonymous, that he wouldn't give us any homework for the weekend if our football team won on Friday.

Thus, our hats are off, in sincere appreciation, to all our instructors who have taught us during our years at Forster, and especially to those whom we had for our final years.

Not only do we owe much to our teachers and our alma mater, but also to our real mothers and fathers. It has been our parents who, at home, have taught us valuable knowledge through their patience and disciplining of us. Through times of difficulty and emotional problems, they have offered their advice, thus helping us over these moments of despair. Their love for us, and interest in our success gave us all an extra will to continue the battle.

Finally, commencement means the reunion of the students of the graduating classes. Together, we enjoyed the same successes; together, we suffered the same defeats, and tonight, for the last time, we have come together again but only briefly before we go our separate ways once more. Nevertheless, the friendships that we have begun and nurtured during our high school years, and more important, the experiences we have gained from them, will enable us to face the unforeseeable future with more courage and confidence.

And so, as we walk from this stage for the last time tonight, we will be breaking that final thread that ties us to our high school years, and, in its place, the burdens of the world begin to rest a little more heavily on our shoulders.

In face of this, I feel that the aims and aspirations of each of the graduates could well be summed up in this short poem by a mister G.L. Banks:

"I live for those who love me, for those who know me true,

For the heaven that smiles above me, and awaits my spirit, too.

For the cause that lacks assistance, for the wrong that needs resistance,

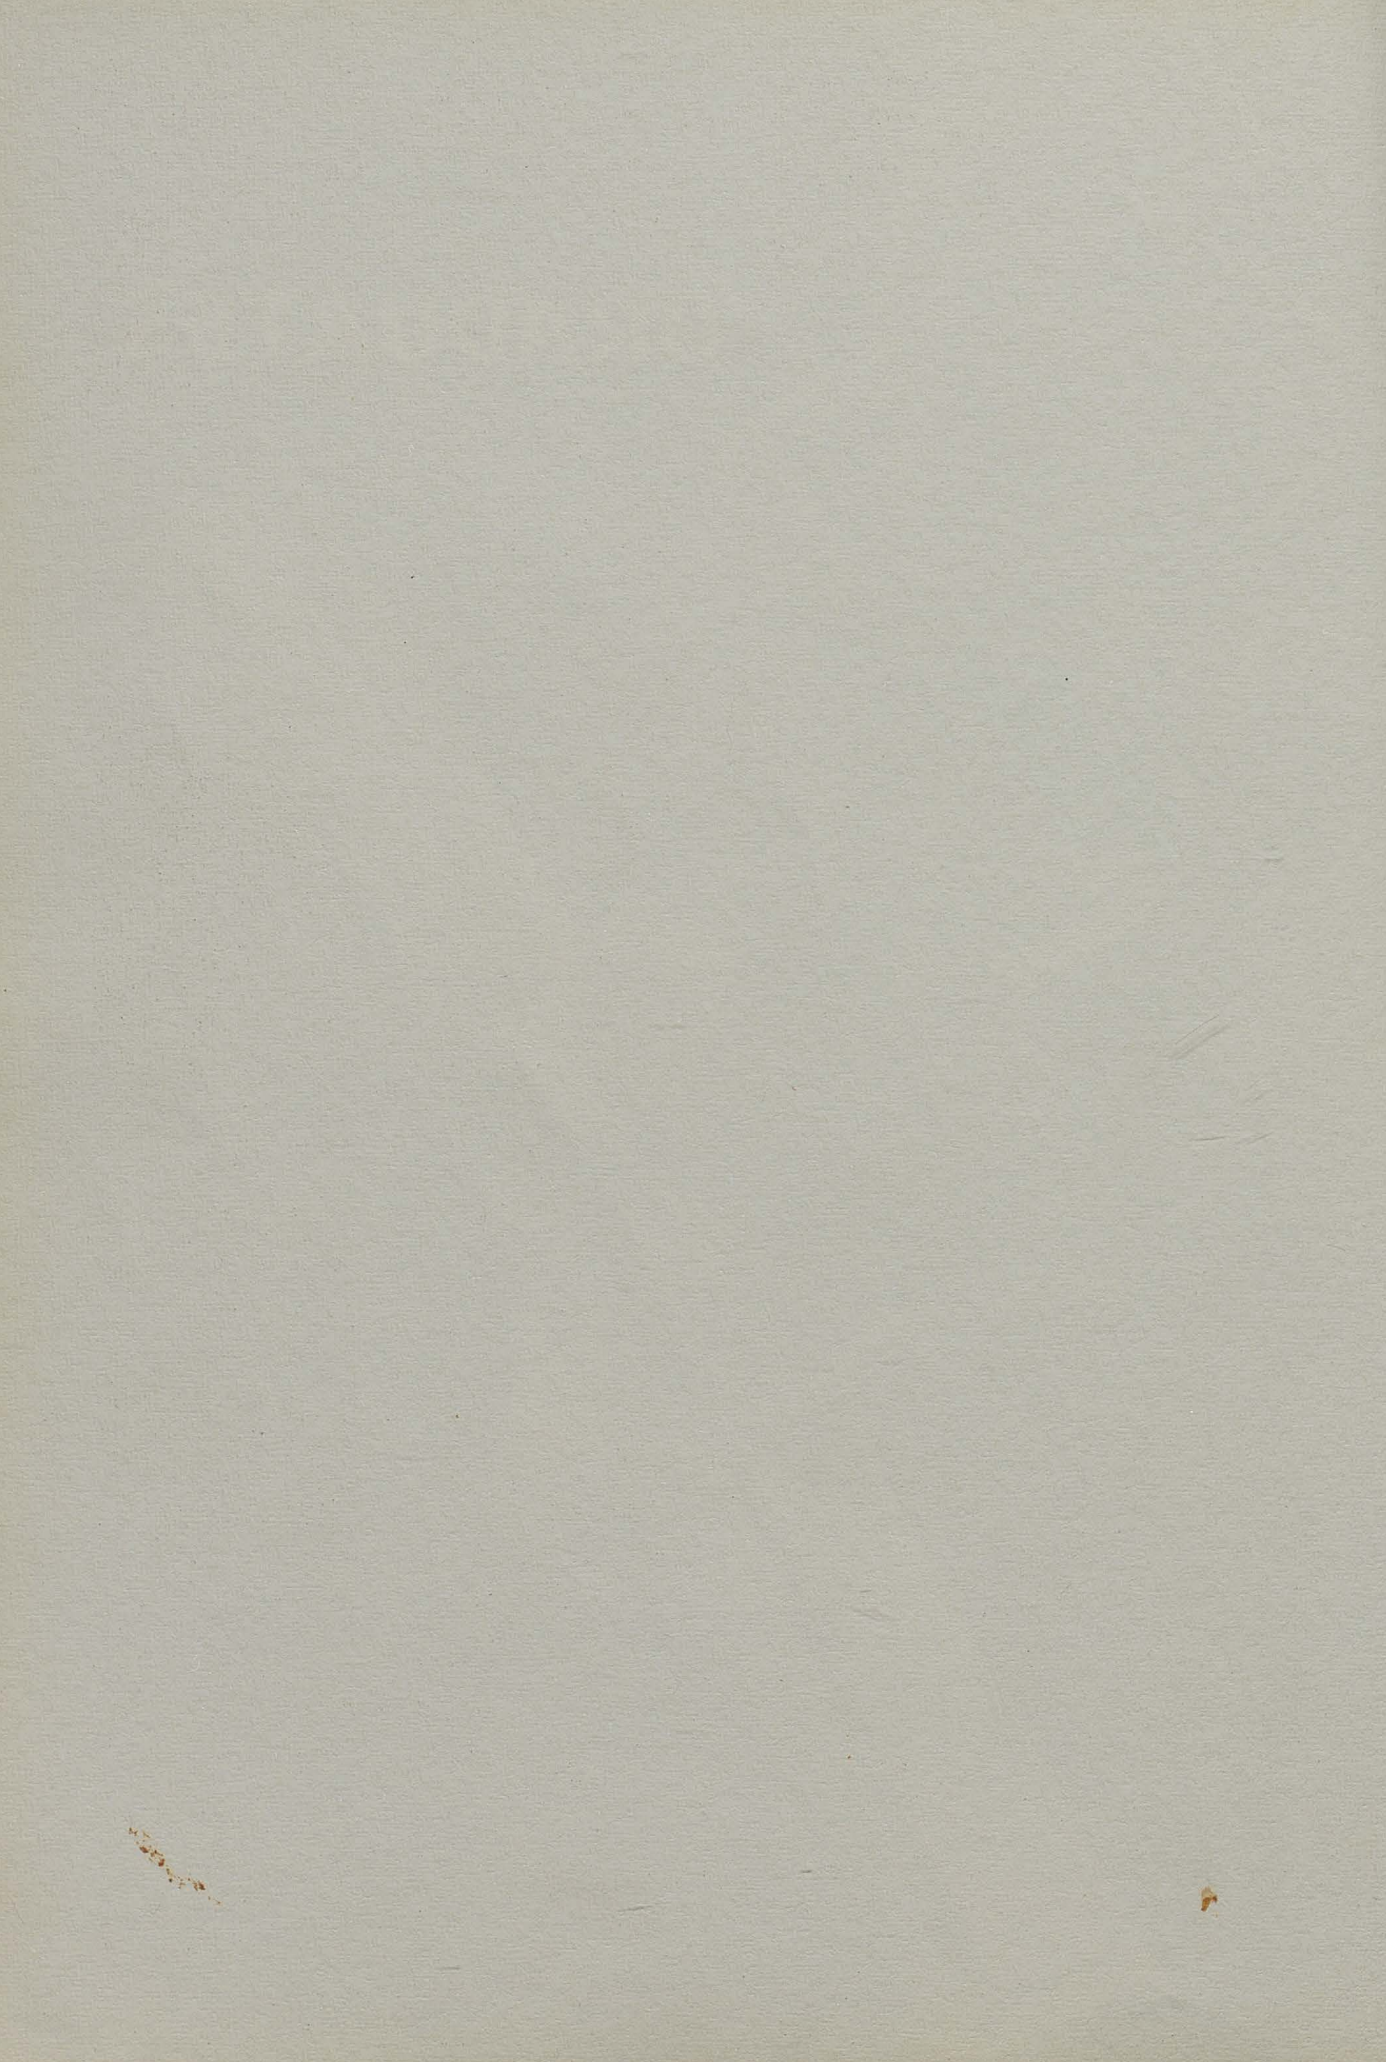

For the future in the distance, and the good that I can do!"

On behalf of all the graduates, thank you, and good-bye!

- Craig Billinghamurst

13A

13A's day starts at about 8:30 A.M. Sitting in the hall, we find Linda Luc, Ian McLeod and John McLaughlin "beatin' the gums" about how great "Batman" was last night. The group discussion develops into a crowd scene until it's "roundup time", and the bird is broken to go to first class. About 8:55 we find Karen Douglas, Jeannie Kulinski, Ardra Merwin and Cherylynn Thrasher working like mad trying to get their Latin prose passages done under the able assistance of Lynn Vincent, Jackie Diraison, Jan Hillis, Jan Jeffrey and Lily Koblash, the "Rondeau Rejects" are probably wishing they were back there now!

"Willie" Roseborough and Melvin Sims are hoping English class will be abolished. Sylvia Sinisac, Pat Ritchie, and Gail Inkster haven't said much but they're thinking, Jill McLeod isn't thinking, but saying a lot. Bob Van Mastright and Mary Steel just walked by (funny how you always see those two together!). In biology Stacie Gamble and Janice Harrison don't approve of Mr. Heaton's comments. Every so often a voice similar to that of Brian Stocks utters a wise crack. Edward alias Skip Graham is trying to figure a way to get the airplane down from the ceiling, and Joe Evon has just taken a blood sample but he can't stop the bleeding. Margie Critchlow can't figure why we have to use her kidney for an example. Kay Farrer has a new subject on her timetable - spares! (that's her best subject!) Louise Frenette should be a dentist (private joke!). Margaret Janisse, Heather Lyons and Gayle Malone probably wish they had never come to Forster. Priscilla Conrad has been bugging me for weeks to get this news in. That's why it's 11:45 P.M. and I'm just finishing 'cause it's due tomorrow. I'll bet you think I forgot Suzanne Carr, Carole Dunn, Nancie Kavanaugh, Carol Macdonald, Elizabeth McCrae, Carol Pugsley and Lynn Zalisko -----; well, I didn't.

Robin Paulton.

13B

Class News 13B

It will be with a touch of nostalgia and a (very) few tears of regret (ha! ha!) that the students of 13 B will leave their beloved Alma Mater this June. Many of us have attended Forster for the past five (six, seven, ...) years and during that time, have probably formed strong opinions about her. At first, we thought we might donate some of these impressions to posterity, but after asking around we concluded that the answers would never pass the censor. Undaunted we came upon a new idea. In the time we have been here, Forster has been very generous to us - piles of books, oodles of homework, heaps of studying, but plenty of fun too. As a result, we resolved to show our appreciation to the school by donating our most prized possessions as farewell gifts. These include:

- Roger Di Blasio - the balloons he plays with in spares.
- Brian Rountree - my gold-capped tooth (when I get one)
- Ray McNally - Mr. Gessell
- Leigh Howell - high Physics marks
- Jim Evon - my heavy schedule (Ed. - Poor boy! two whole classes. You have our sympathy)
- John Henderson - low grade averages in Physics.
- Melba Hachey - Jim Evon's jokes.
- Allan Halliday - my brains.
- Don Hazelwood - Joan
- Ann Granziol - Mike Granziol
- Mike Granziol - Ann Granziol
- Joe Evon - my honour marks (Ed. - Oh, come now!)

- Dave Fitzpatrick - French class, English class, Physics class, Biology class, etc.
- Louise Frenette - my punctuality.
- Betty Garvey - a permanent statue of Louise Frenette.
- Skip Graham - one left-footed sneaker (Ed.-??)
- Barbara Mitchell - an autographed picture of the Sytations.
- Ian Hibbert - my first and only symphony.
- Rosemarie Bahr - to Mr. Mallender - one case of writer's cramp (Ed. - And how!)
- Tom Silcox - all my Physics experiments
- Stan Steele - revised P.S.S.C. Physics textbook
- Dale Giroux - to Mr. Mallender - my book "Blowing Up Mailboxes For Fun and Profit"
- Linda Runstedler - Betty Garvey
- Jack Lawrence - an insurance claim.
- Mitch LeFave - something or other (Ed. - What we like about Mitch is that he's always so specific).

12A

This is the story about 12A
 The class that's never learned their way.
 Our day begins in our homeroom class,
 With Miss McIntosh teaching English to an illiterate mass.
 Our chemistry classes are a mere disaster,
 With Mr. Sparling our terrified master.
 Iain, Fred, Eric and Dennis
 In the lab are Forster's menace.
 And don't ask Valerie (aided by Gary) how many test-tubes she's broken,
 For her number exceeds Brian's and Nancy's by a mere little token.
 And Allen sets Greer into a fright,
 Everytime he doesn't do an experiment right.
 Will Mr. Freeman ever stop picking on John?
 Really he isn't doing anything wrong.
 Is it his fault that Ginny, Pat, and Thelma - who sit around him
 Don't know enough French to help him answer
 the question?
 Mr. Skoyles thinks that Charlene sleeps all period,
 While Jim recites to Les his very own Aeneid.
 When Mr. Mallender dishes out homework Craig
 just lumps it,

While Bob takes off with his little brass trumpet.
 In Miss Weller's class, Anne and Maria's seats squeak
 So Pat S. gave Miss Weller an oil can quite petite.
 In Miss Royce's class Helen takes Esther for a Whirl.
 Think she'll ever have the chance to be the girl?
 Mr. Pepper makes Ken and Larry exercise well,
 But Brian and Dennis promise that they'll never tell.
 After school, Veronica and Eleanor are members
 of the choir,
 While Brian T. and Bill in Mr. Beattie's are two live wires.
 Helene and Paddy rush to band with Mr. Gerenda.
 And Janet has cheerleading on her agenda.
 Cheryl dawns the fuzzy white bonnet of her own,
 While Heidi watches for her car ride home.
 Thus ends the hectic, nerve-racking day
 For all the teachers of that riot - 12-A!

EXPERIMENT No. 12C

Purpose:

For Experimental Purposes.

Apparatus:

34 Scientists

Method:

- (1) HYDRATES: Jeanette Murray, Al Sinal, Sandy Butler, Bruce Pearson.
- (2) DOUBLE COHERENT BONDS: A/Sanford Lablanc and Cathy Cahoon, /Danny Hanson and Vicky Andrews, C/Ralph Smith and Linda Lore, D/Dave Ryall and Wanda Kempa.
- (3) POSITIVE CATALYSTS: Carolyn Giroux, Fred Caverzan, Frank Gallagher.
- (4) NEGATIVE CATALYSTS: Bob Lewis, Bob Lesperance.
- (5) ACTIVE (POISONOUS) ELEMENTS: Rick Stone, John Jones, Bill Desmond, Richard Locke.
- (6) STABLE (NON POISONOUS) ELEMENTS: Ruth Sullivan, Sandy Husband, Margery Peach, Nancy Peters.

Equations:

Observation:

- 1./Bloated Situation (HYDRATES)
- 2./Crowded Displacement (COHERENT BONDS)
- 3./Violent Explosion (POSITIVE CATALYSTS)
- 4./Very Subtle Reaction (NEGATIVE CATALYSTS)
- 5./Nitro-Glycerene (ACTIVE ELEMENTS)
- 6./Sodium Bicarbonate (NON-ACTIVE ELEMENTS)

Conclusion:

That famous old home elixer guaranteed to cure anything from warts to cancer "SPARLING'S" Black Label Beer.

Formed and Generated by: Carolyn Giroux and Fred "Goalie" Caverzan.

Byline - Ruth Sullivan.

Mr. Sparling - "aha! a dirty sink"

WHAT THE WORLD BE LIKE if....

Julie had black hair and no black eyes?
Tom C. had nothing to say about Mr. Gerenda?
Carol B. was not a mysterious red-head?
Nancy went back to her short, short hairdo of long ago?
Bonnie did not exasperate Miss Royce with her badminton?
Carol S. decided to stop planting bombs in the school? (thought we didn't know)
Ron, Gerry, Tony formed the Little Choir Boys of Windsor Association? (they would probably starve).
Randy decided to be a boxer?
Lise started her own Soap Opera entitled "What Will Happen Next to Little Lise"?
David Succeeded in becoming the second little old winemaker?
Sandra was careful in chemistry class?

11D

CURIOSITY CORNER:

Has Windsor REALLY annexed Bill Kova's farm?
Will Jo Ellen Jackson ever understand Shakespeare?
Has Dan Sheppard disproved Einstein's Theory of Relativity?
Is George Repayl really James Bond in disguise?
Does Nancy McLaughlin's hairdresser really know for sure?
Does Janet Reaume spot at the Windsor Raceway?
Is Lynne McPhail the one who spit in Mr. Gessell's room?
Does Russ Marchand really take tap dancing lessons?
Is Marilyn Morgan a rabble - rouser at political rallies?
Jerry Musson - is it true blondes have more fun?
Does Dwight Siegner really paint by numbers?

THERE WOULDN'T BE AN 11D IF:

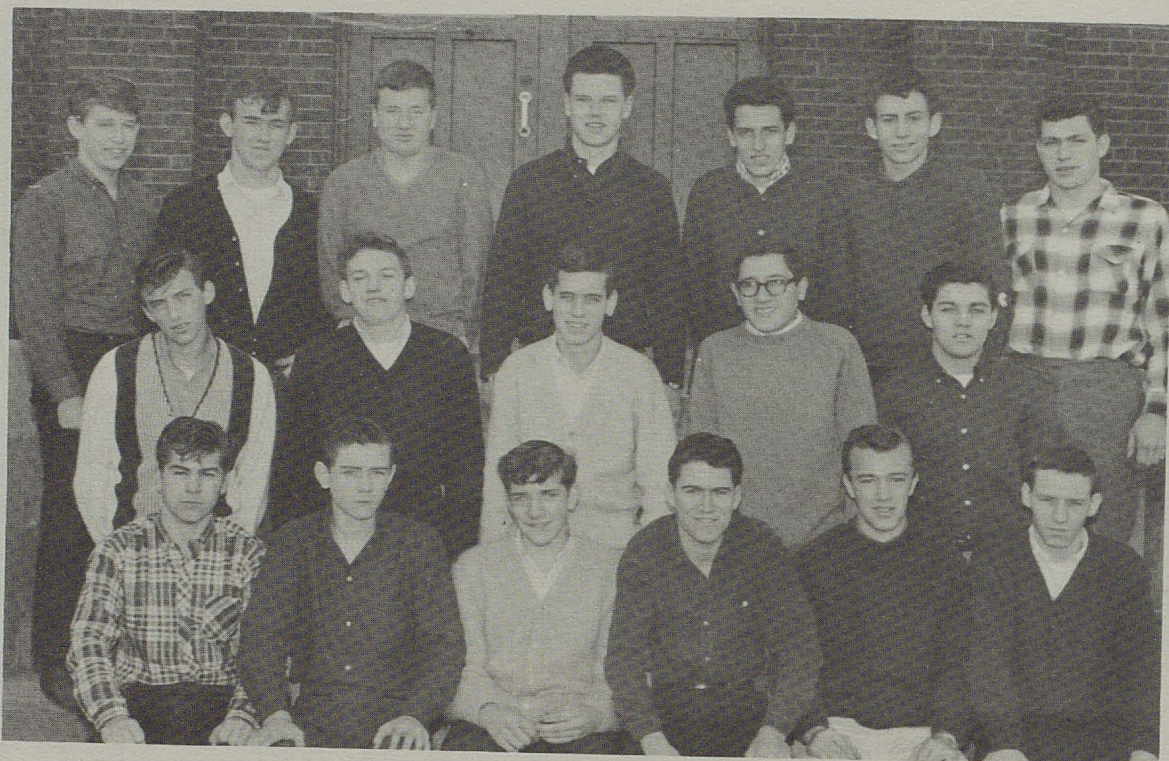

Mary Shaw didn't ask questions in Physics.
John Smith stopped grinning.
Rick Sullivan wore baggy pants.
Sandy Walker didn't like Anay.

THE 10A BLOOPER

FLASH! - 10A Marvellously Superior

Yes, we here at 10A feel we are much better than any other 10A at Forster, and why not? Just take a gander at these immortal words adapted from the patrons of our class.

Pat B. - "Sorry... Thank-you... Sorry!"

Jean M. - "John!".. "John!".. "John!"

Ann S. - "Well".."Alors".."Ebbene".."Nu".

And all our teachers feel the same say.

Isn't that right, Mr. Beattie?

And we've such an array of talent!

Real little leaders of tomorrow!

Vince - Ballet Dancer

Bev - Vivacious Russian spy

Ron - All-round world's best everything

Helen - Fresh freezing baked apples

Dave - Midget

Dol K. - Picking German tomatoes in Leaming-ton.

Ed - Ladies' underwear manufacturing tycoon.

Sherry - Mens' underwear manufacturing tycoon

Ramona - Private, private Secretary.

Carol - Mrs. Charleton Heston

Ann H. - Teaching canaries to sing

OBITUARIES

We are publishing (for all those too cheap to hire a lawyer) The last bequests of:

Rosemary - A can of Right Guard.

Liz J. - Absolutely nothing, it's all coming with me!

Linda R. - My last remains to Puce Medical School.

Chris - one mouldy gym suit.

AWARDED TO:

Jan P. - 500 nickels

Sandy - 1 permanent hallpass

Jan S. - 1 "six-finger" to stick in a dam

Trudy - 1 honorary M.A. in Latin.

10B

This story as you can see,
Is about that class we call 10B.
Of Steve who is our "Raw Emotion",
And writes notes to Bill in Math
When he takes a notion.
Of Gail Basden who never shouts,
And Kathy Butler who loves to pout.
Of Dale Bensette who's a real tart,
And spends all Saturday working at K-mart.
Of Pat Leonard who is the class tickler,
Who some day will become a dill-pickler.
And this is only part of the story as you can see.
Of that class they call 10B.

FUTURE OCCUPATIONS:

Nathan Wood - Lumberjack
Greg Sway - Dance Instructor
Marion Murray - Mrs. B. Poopsie
Wene Burke - Secret Agent
Lynne Lampart - Butcher
Judy Carr - Garage Mechanic

Dick Lawrence - Sounds of Silence

DAYS TO REMEMBER:

The day Penny got her glasses.
The day Mike was voted treasurer.
When Monica Rotenburg got her hair cut.
When Marilyn wore her slippers to school.
THINGS WE'D LIKE TO SEE:
Sandy M. - not being crazy over horses
Jill C. - getting to the bus stop on time
Gord P. - without his silk scarf.

P.S. We'd also like to thank Mr. Melega for putting up with us.

10C

DO YOU REMEMBER?

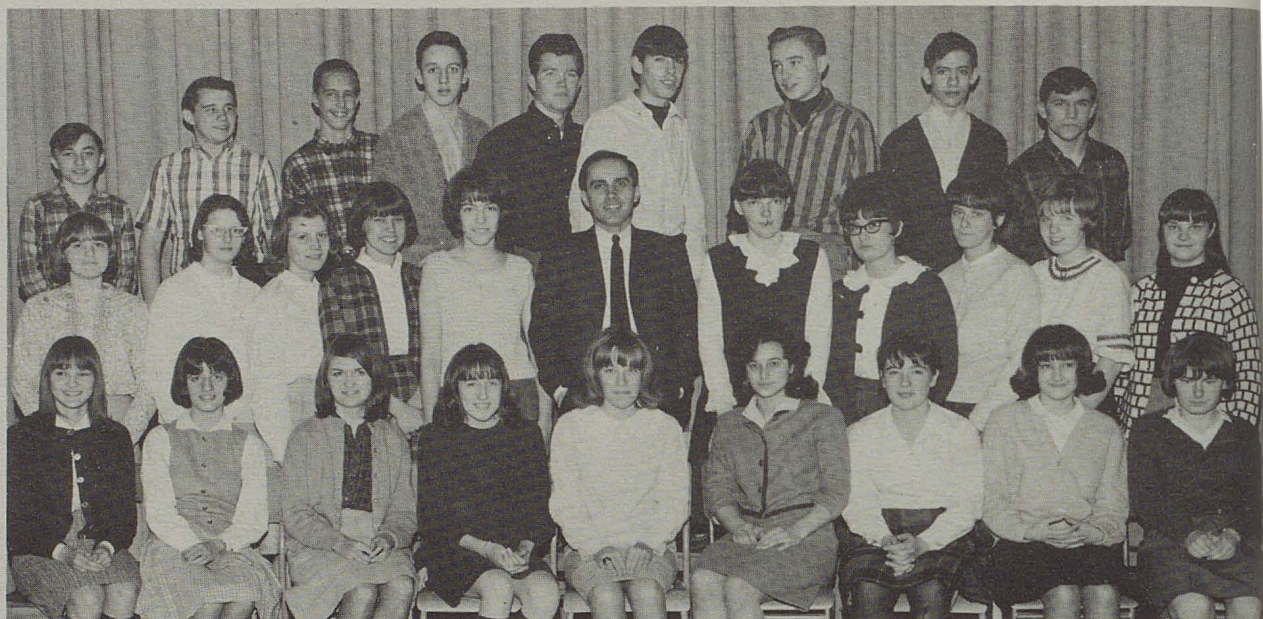

The day Jo-Anne Renaud wore a granny dress?
 The day Mr. Necodomo kicked Tim McCullough out for good but we knew he'd let him back in?
 The day Mr. Heaton got Robbin MacLean's letter from?
 The day Kevin Jewell passed out money in Mr.
 Heaton's class?
 The day Mr. Carpenter told Jerry Talbot to leave the girls alone?
 The last time you saw Shaune Meloche at school?
 The day Lynne Griffiths told us she was going to get married?
 The day Roger Dyan died his hair black and it turned green?
 The day David Attwood didn't give out gum in Math class?
 The day Janice Boismier got mad at John?
 The day Ron Ettinger sang Adeste Fideles?
 When Miss Weller made Debbe Hutcher pin up her granny dress?

SONG TITLES

10D

Curiosity Corner

- Does Jan really wear a wig?
- Did a rainbow really hit Barb's sweater on her way to school one day?
- Did you ever wonder why Barry is always late?
- Did you ever wonder what Susan S. does in her lunch times?
- Did Susan really spend all that time in the hospital?
- Did Dawn's father really think that was madras?
- Did Terry really come from Canada?
- Did Phil really send those Pizzas to Randy New Years' Eve?
- Personally don't you see a resemblance between Wayne and Herman Munster?

Twenty Years from Now

- Karen: an errand girl for Mr. Beattie
- Paul: still watching the Mickey Mouse Club
- Chris: still living in La Salle
- Tom: still trying to get his Grade 10 Certificate.
- Eric: blowing bubbles for Lawrence Welk
- Judy: teaching French in Assumption High School.
- Mike: still wishing everyone would shrink
- Patty: still making Creepy Crawlers
- Jill: Still trying to convince teachers she was sick that afternoon.

- Shirley: still wishing for a certain boy.

Soap Opera of 10D

- Will Mori ever get to double for Mia Farrow on Peyton Place?
- Will Sharon ever stop thinking that 12A is the greatest?
- Will Isabel ever get her hair to go the way she wants it to?
- Will Donna ever learn that if you cross a tall plant with a tall plant the result will be all tall?
- Will Alexandra ever learn the real meaning of money?
- Will Betty ever be just dumb?
- Will Richard ever talk in class?
- Will Gretchen ever get along with Mr. Havelock?

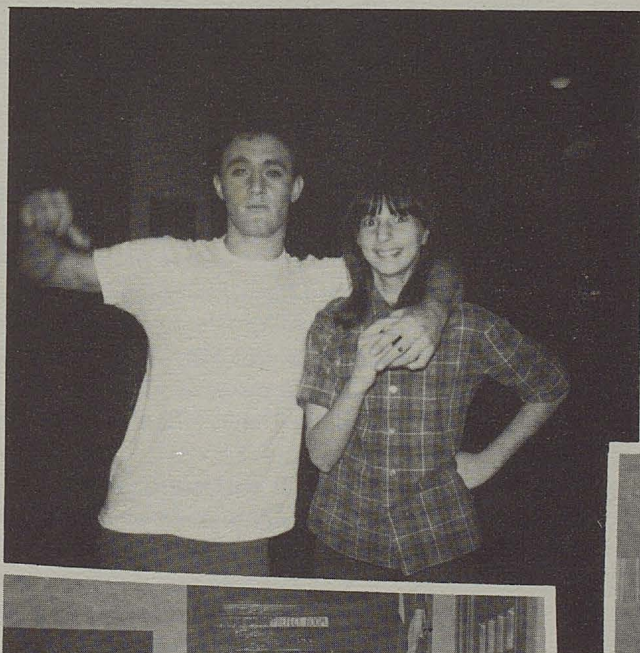

Last Will and Testament

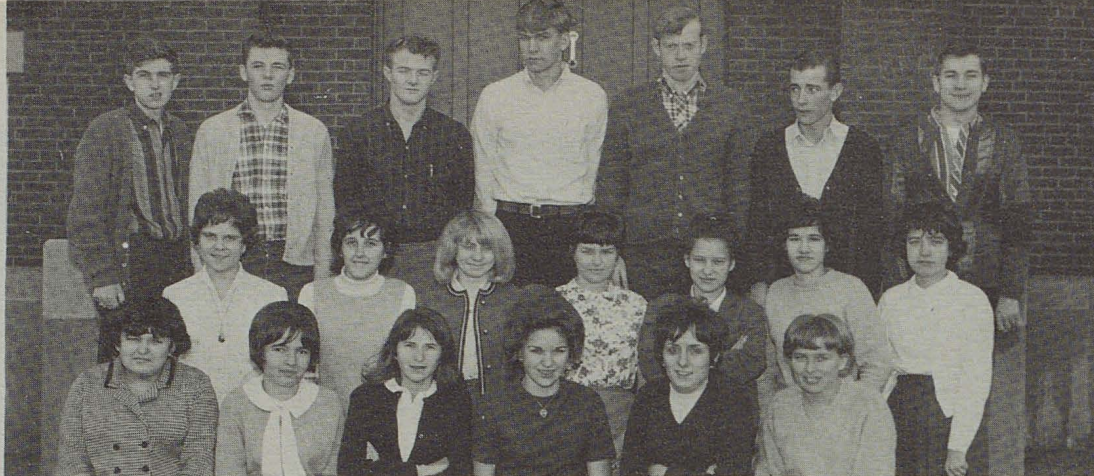

- To Miss Montsch we leave the "4" sections in Phil's notebook.
- To Mr. Havelock we leave a piece of wood so he doesn't have to knock on his head any more.
- To Mr. Beattie we leave the 5'2" blonde he's been asking for.

BALLAD OF 9C

Pat Liffiton is our leader
And Farrer comes up next
Both fighting the awful teachers
That sit in the big front desks.

Waffle is our Mascot
Mr. Renaud disliked the way he sang
The other teachers agreed
And Waffle was to be hanged.

Now Lesperance is no angel
There's lots of proof of that
But the angel is another
Our fearless leader Pat.

Lana and Heather's locker
Is as tidy as a pin
Until their books and things
Are nicely thrown in.

Evangeline's our little French girl
Of the very influential type
So if you come near 9C
Keep well out of her sight.

While Gayle is our Juliet
And Shields our Romeo now
Corrigan's in the best of things
And Boismier is the clown.

With lots and lots of Metrecal
Fat Fuzzy's here today
And John Jeannette our guilt man
Has never anything to say.

Charlene is our Cleopatra
Of the twentieth century era
While Chris is Phyllis Diller,
The wild and wooly T.V. killer.

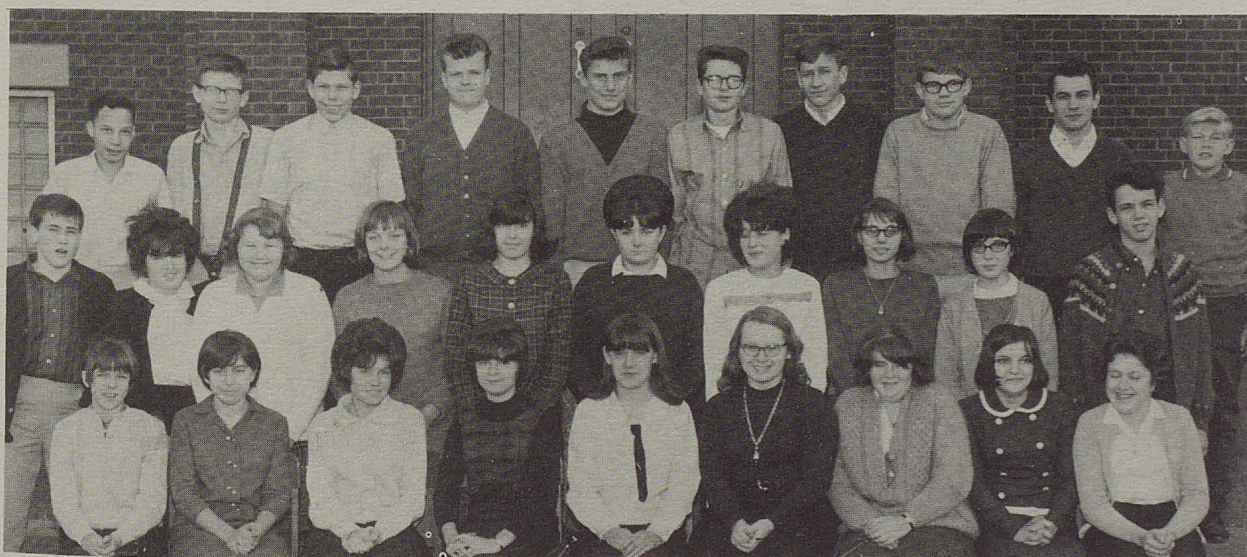

Lee Masse is Brown's master
When she made him burst in laughter
So if you're feeling low and dull
Get your smiles from her.

While Sharon Snider coughs all day
Making someone laugh aloud
The natives are not restless
It's just the 9C crowd!!!

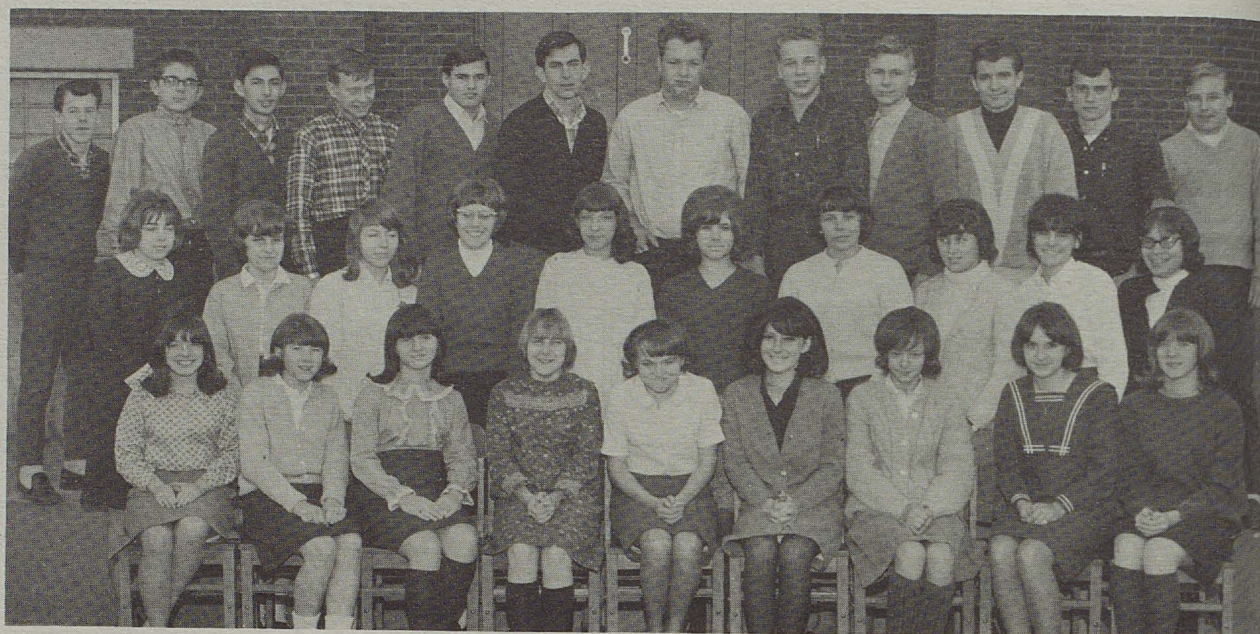

CAN YOU IMAGINE:
Pat Allen - talking aloud
Marilyn M. - gaining weight
Pam Bookman - fitting size 6
Mary Gardener - without her lipstick
Paulette Lamonthé - going steady
Heather McIntosh - keeping quiet
Pat Perry - an astronaut
Charlene Percy - the quiet type.

He attended a grammar school in Stratford where the boys sang Latin, as in all such schools, was on Latin. How long he remained there we do not know, but he very likely became a scholar. Of his next few years we know scarcely anything, but at eighteen he married Anne Hathaway, eight years older than he, who lived in adjacent Shottery and whose father's home, now known as Anne Hathaway's Cottage, is a point of interest yearly for thousands of

A detailed black and white illustration of a Tudor-style house, likely Anne Hathaway's Cottage. The house features a steep gabled roof, a large chimney on the right side, and a half-timbered upper story. The foreground shows a path leading towards the house.

THE FOREST

Limbo forest, black and deep
Products of our minds alone
Do we dare to walk, not creep-
Head of dust and heart of stone?

In this forest we are blind.
By intention we cannot see.
You saw nothing, t'was in your mind.
If you think, you cease to be.

Mindless slumber's like a potion.
Deaf by choice, we do not hear.
All our dreams are set in motion
When reality comes too near.

Yes, the forest is quite still:
There is no tongue to make a sound
Although we know, we have no will-
No more than stones upon the ground.

Yet there are those who wish to think;
Bringing up Prometheus's fire:
The painful flame-it makes us blink
With it we light their funeral pyre.

IF YOU DON'T SUCCEED . . . QUIT!

Herman Vanderquat strode jauntily down the street, his $30 hat cocked carefully above his left eye. A young man of 25, Herman had just finished training at the Northern Ojibway School of Espionage (affectionately called NOSE) and was now on his very first mission. Herman's mother had objected to his plan but Herman had persevered at the rigorous two-week course and his mother had been consoled when his name was put in the paper at the first of his class. He liked to stretch back his shoulders and hear the new leather of his own shoulder holster creak. To look at him, spy was the farthest word from your mind; he was really quite fat and his effort to wear imported Italian shoes (like James Bond) had left him with a conspicuous waddle. Herman actually looked quite young and in an effort to look older he had grown a sparse mustache, whose colour inspired one to wonder, "Does he, or doesn't he."

It had been a great day when he received his mission. He was standing by the water cooler when Ilya Karachi, an associate, had tapped him on the shoulder and said, "S wants to see you." Trying not to show his excitement, Herman had said a nonchalant, "Down the hatch" and thrown back his glass of water. The glass, however, was fuller than he thought and he wound up with water running out of his nose and brown dye running out of his wilting moustache. Ilya tried to console him but Herman was beyond consolation and stamped his foot violently on the floor. The glass envelope of the water cooler shuddered and toppled onto the outstretched feet of 003¢. Herman tried to apologize but before he could utter a syllable he was beat into the corner by the sounds emanating from poor 003¢.

Herman managed to survive his interview with S and left immediately to tell his mother of his luck. He then returned to the office which was cleverly disguised as a theatrical agency for "exotic dancers". That sort of disguise always helped to pass days when business was slow, although it embarrassed Herman when a dancer would give him a sly wink in hope of speeding her career.

Herman went directly to the supply office to receive his kit. He did not want to waste time and besides he wanted to avoid 003¢.

Owens, the agent in charge gave him his equipment, and half an hour later Herman was on a train bound for Chicago. Detroit to Chicago is a three-hour train ride and his mission had to be accomplished in that short time.

As he settled down in his seat, the facts of the case filtered through Herman's trained mind. He was assigned the task of finding a man called Pete Gherbour. They had very little on the files about Gherbour except that he was involved with the smuggling branch of C.I.D.S., The Canadian Institute for Destitute Spies. Head quarters was sure that Gherbour was taking some valuable information to Chicago. Herman was to get this information back to NOSE as soon as possible and this would have to be done before Gherbour got off the train into the huge crowds of Chicago. The task was further complicated by the fact that Herman had no description of Gherbour except that he was often seen in Chinese restaurants wearing red.

The sharpened mind of a spy is never idle and as he thought over his seemingly hopeless assignment, Herman watched the passengers as they entered the coach. It was certain that Gherbour was on that particular coach since this was the only one serving Chinese food.

Herman had to get to the dining car as early as possible in order to see who ordered Chinese Food. He picked a seat in the lounge which was adjacent to the dining compartment and from where he could see everyone who entered and especially those who ordered Chinese food.

The lounge, in which Herman was sitting, was technically known as the bar and Herman felt a twinge of panic when the waiter asked for his order. Herman had only had a glass of sherry at New Year (since his mother didn't approve of "drunks") and he knew that he must not be conspicuous. "Martini," he said, giving a casual but quivering smile to the waiter.

"Dry, Sir" asked the waiter, smirking with joy at the look of abundant ignorance on Herman's redding face.

"Yeah, I mean, well whatever you think", he stammered, obviously quite flustered.

"Yes, Sir" said the waiter and he hurried off to tell the bartender about his little joke.

When the drink came Herman tipped the waiter and settled down to his vigil. There were about ten people from his car who came to eat and of these three ordered Egyptian food. Two were men and the woman seemed to be married to one. Herman complicated himself on his reasoning for this deduction. It was based on only two apparent facts; 1. The woman was wearing a wedding ring, and 2. She was pregnant.

The other man looked quite normal. He wore a two-button, continental styled Venetian suit, English brogues, a blue Paisley tie, blue pin-stripe shirt, and in his breast pocket was a red handkerchief.

"That's him", thought Herman, but then he realized that he had not only thought it, but he had said it out loud, too. Gherbour was up and away before Herman knew what had happened. He was running towards the other end of the train but our hero was right (well, almost) on his trail. As he ran, Herman caught a glimpse of something brown in Gherbour's left hand. A briefcase! With renewed inspiration Herman put on a burst of speed and fell into a woman's lap at the end of the coach. Up like a flash, Herman was off and running again, but as he rose he heard a rip and felt a draft where there should not have been one. Undaunted he rushed on but Gherbour had chosen to make his stand and was now in the women's washroom, much to the bafflement of Herman. Herman quickly consulted his book THE DO'S AND DON'TS OF SPYING by Francis Gary Powers. There was nothing to cover such a situation so Herman made his decision. He burst through the door, gun in hand and immediately Gherbour surrendered.

At Chicago they disembarked and Herman handed his prisoner over to his fellow agents at the station. The officer Herman was directly responsible to was congratulating him and asked, "By the way, where'd you put the briefcase?"

"The wha.....?"

"You know, the briefcase with the information."

Herman turned a ghastly green and the words, "On train", were all the officer could make out of the garble. It was enough.

No, Herman was not the best of spies but every man has his place in society. A few years later Herman made it big in movies. He had had his teeth straightened, lost some weight and changed his name to Sean Connery.

LETTERS FROM VIET NAM

These are a few memoirs from letters by a Marine in Viet Nam. He went to Forster two years ago and once worked on the Advertising Staff of the Spartalogue. There is more truth in these letters about how the boys really feel and what they must do than in any book.

"Yesterday, I received an Xmas package from 'the people of Michigan' and a couple of letters from Grade 3 and 4 students. When I read the letters from three boys in Grade 4 I would guess, I got a big lump in my throat. It reminded me of my brothers' scribble.

I also got a model car which I gave to a small boy last night on my way to town. Wish you could have seen his face brighten! The poor little tykes don't know what it's all about--just like any other day."

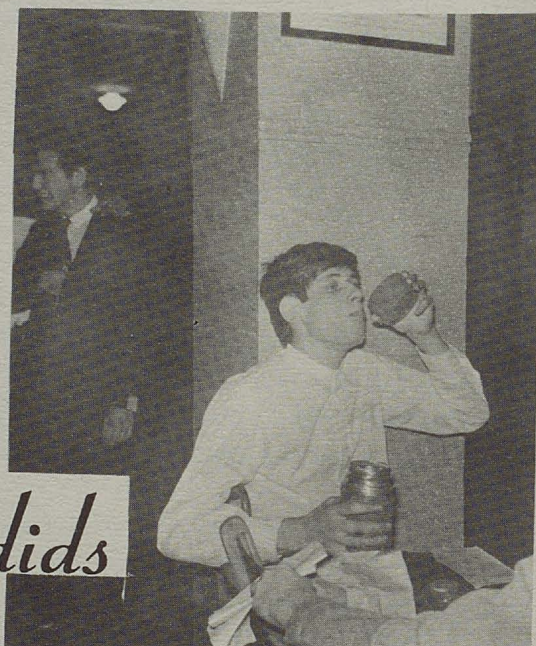

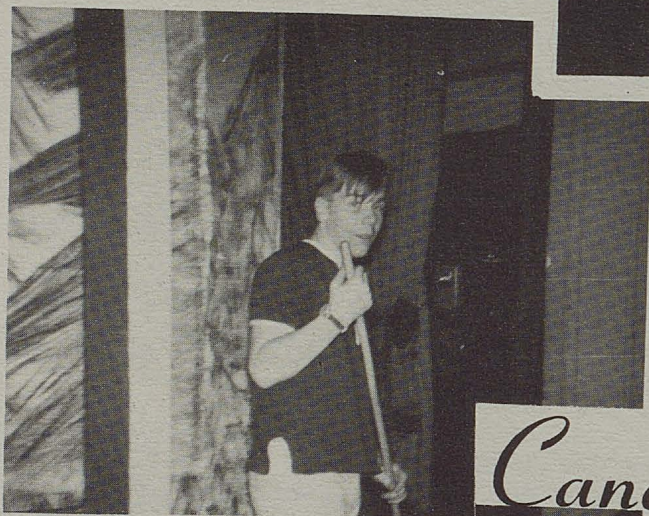

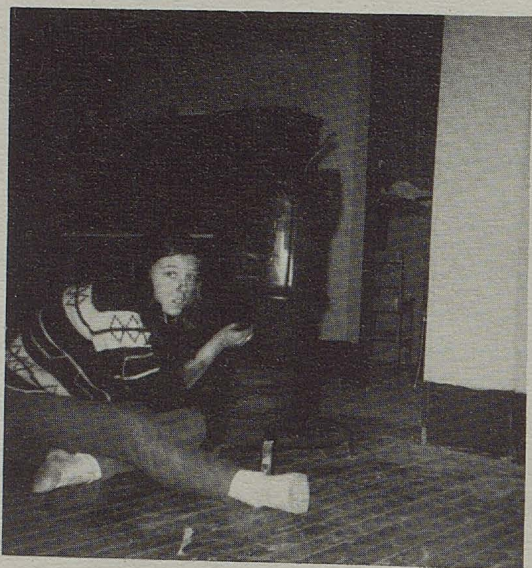

"A bunch of us who live in Detroit and vicinity were talking tonight. We decided that when we get to the U.S. we are going to phone the Detroit News and let them know we're coming. Who knows, we might even get our pictures in the paper!"

"The days are passing so slowly now. I dread the thought of spending Christmas here, in a foxhole..... Tomorrow I turn 19. It doesn't seem like a year's passed. I spent my last birthday in the service too. I'll be almost 20 when I come home next-----. I put on a new wall on our bunker. The old one was shot and ants had begun to nest between the sand bags."

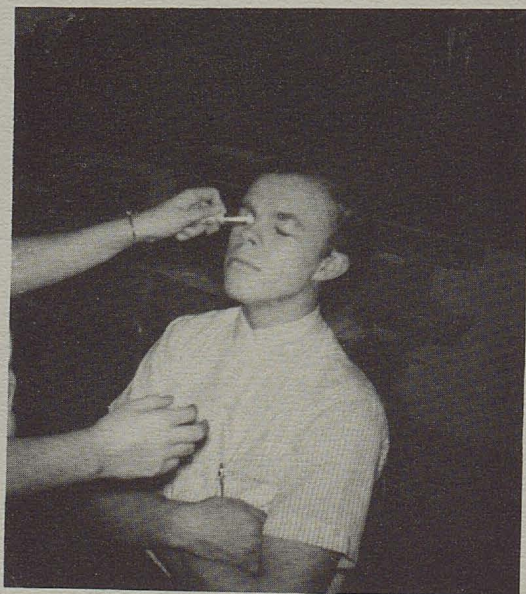

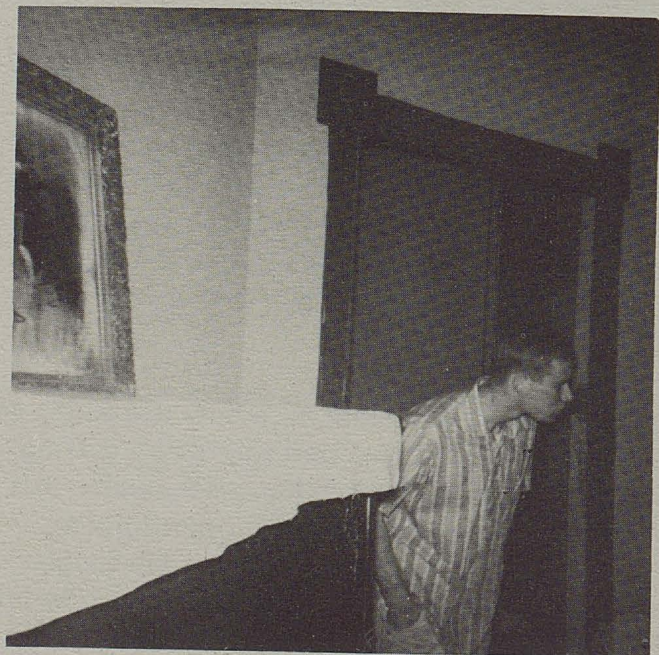

"Yesterday, I came off a twelve-day sweep in which we killed 18 V.C. and captured 11 suspects. I might add, it rained 9 of the 12 days we were out there. We went so far back into the hills that we needed helicopters to get us in and out. They said no Marines have ever patrolled that area. Now I know why. It was a hard 12 days but we accomplished what we set out to do. When I got back off this sweep, I had some bad news waiting for me. I was told, only 4% of my old company (the one I came over here with) was left in fighting condition. Most of them are back stateside with severe wounds. The others unfortunately K/A's (killed in action). It's hard to believe that the guys you've lived with all this time (15 months) are gone, or in bad shape. I was shocked! When they told me my squad leader and gunner were killed my heart jumped in my mouth. If I'd of stayed with my company, I would be just as dead as they are."

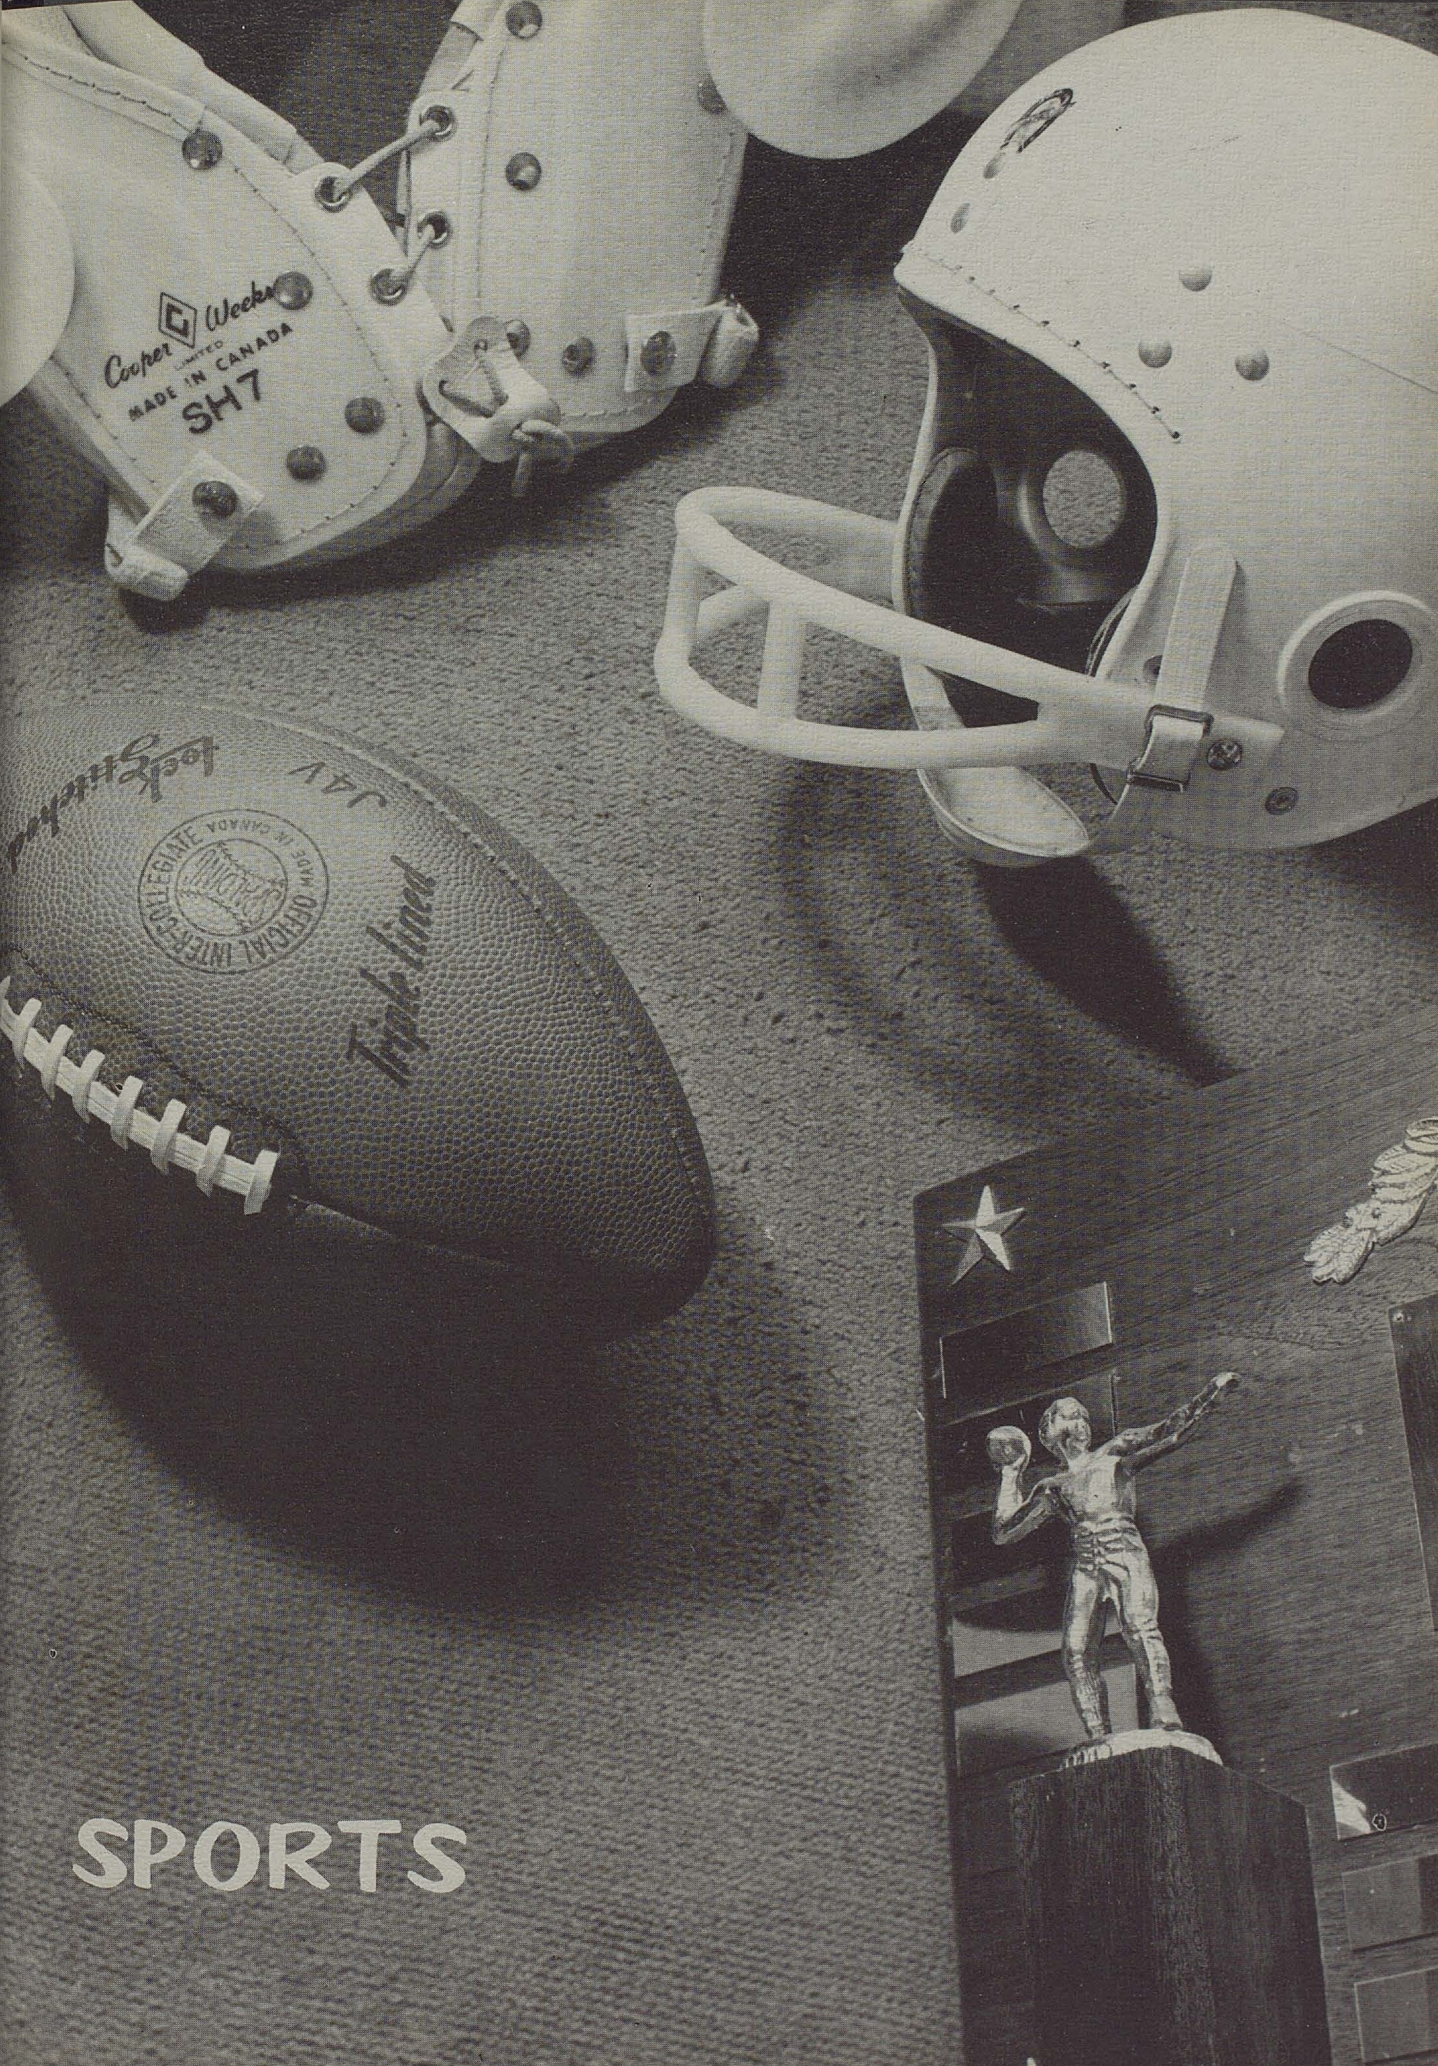

"All kinds of things have been happening since I went on patrol and while on patrol. First of all, one guy went busurk and another committed suicide by pulling a pin on a grenade. It blew him all to pieces. I knew both fellas pretty well. All this happened within two days. Division is now holding a thorough investigation. It's hard to believe, but 50% of this war is mental strain on us being in the jungle with so many bugs, snakes, leeches, and God knows what all. Another part is being in a strange country. So far this batallion has lost 4 men because of malaria."

"Will be home for Easter (I hope) in time to go to Florida for a vacation with my family."

SPECIAL EVENTS

Prom Queen

The theme of this year's prom was A Chalet In Switzerland. The auditorium was transformed into a snowy wonderland complete with a mountain mural, snowflakes and an ice rink with skaters. Music was provided by the orchestra of Ezio Pallazi.

This year's queen, Martha Elgar, was escorted by Greg Senay. The most elegant moment of the evening came when last year's prom queen, Irma Schultz, placed the shimmering tiara upon the head of our new queen.

The royal court was led by Barbara MacDonald, the first princess, who was escorted by George Maxim. The second princess was Shirley Collison whose escort was Ted Langlois.

The remainder of the court consisted of Lesley Yared accompanied by Jim Askin, Melba Hachey with Frank Timasco, Ruth Sullivan and Garry Pearce, and Jan Hillis escorted by Fred Caverzan.

Our thanks to the chaperones, Dance Committee and all who helped to make the prom a success.

COMMENCEMENT

On Friday evening, November 26, 1965 the annual commencement exercises were held in the Forster Auditorium. The band's prelude included a tribute to "Glenn Miller". They also played the Processional under the direction of Mr. E. Gerenda. The Graduates and Academic Pin Winners sang "The School Song" and "O Canada". The Invocation was given by Captain M. D. Young. The Academic Pins were presented by Mr. Silcox and Mr. Ellis.

The speaker Dr. J. F. Leddy was introduced by Mr. Brown.

Following Mr. Leddy's address to the Graduating class, the choir, under Mr. Renaud's direction sang "Dear Heart", and "Unchained Melody".

The Graduation Diplomas (Grade 12) were presented by Miss Weller, Miss McIntosh and Mr. Sparling. The Honour Graduation Diplomas (Grade 13) were presented by Dr. R. J. Whitty, Mr. Skoyles and Mr. Mallender.

The Valedictory Address was given by Craig Billinghamurst.

After the singing of "God Save The Queen", there was a reunion of the Graduating Classes and their friends in the new library.

STRATFORD TRIP

Early in the morning of September 23, a group of Forster students and their teachers boarded a train at the C.N.R. station. Their destination - the Shakespearean Festival in Stratford, Ontario.

There was both excitement and curiosity in the students as the train started on its journey. For some, it was the first time they were going to the Shakespearean Festival, and in just a short time, they would become better acquainted with one of the greatest men in English Literature, while those students who had been to the Festival in previous years went with a better knowledge of what to expect.

When the students arrived in Stratford, there was still enough time for a quick stroll downtown, a walk around the Festival grounds or a long quick stroll along the shore of the Avon River.

When it was 2 p.m. the students were taken back in time to the streets of Rome in the year 44 B.C. At that time, William Shakespeare's production of Julius Caesar was presented. After the play, a question and answer period followed. The students asked questions about the theatre and players and their questions were most capably answered by one of the players.

Everyone was tired, but happy and smiling as they arrived back in Windsor that night.

In closing, I could give my opinion about the play, but perhaps it would be prejudiced. Instead, you can judge for yourself, for here are some candid comments I heard from students as I was leaving the station: "A good performance", "Better than what I expected", "Not as good as last year", "I thought Brutus was the best-betrayed character", "I always thought Shakespeare was a bore--until today".

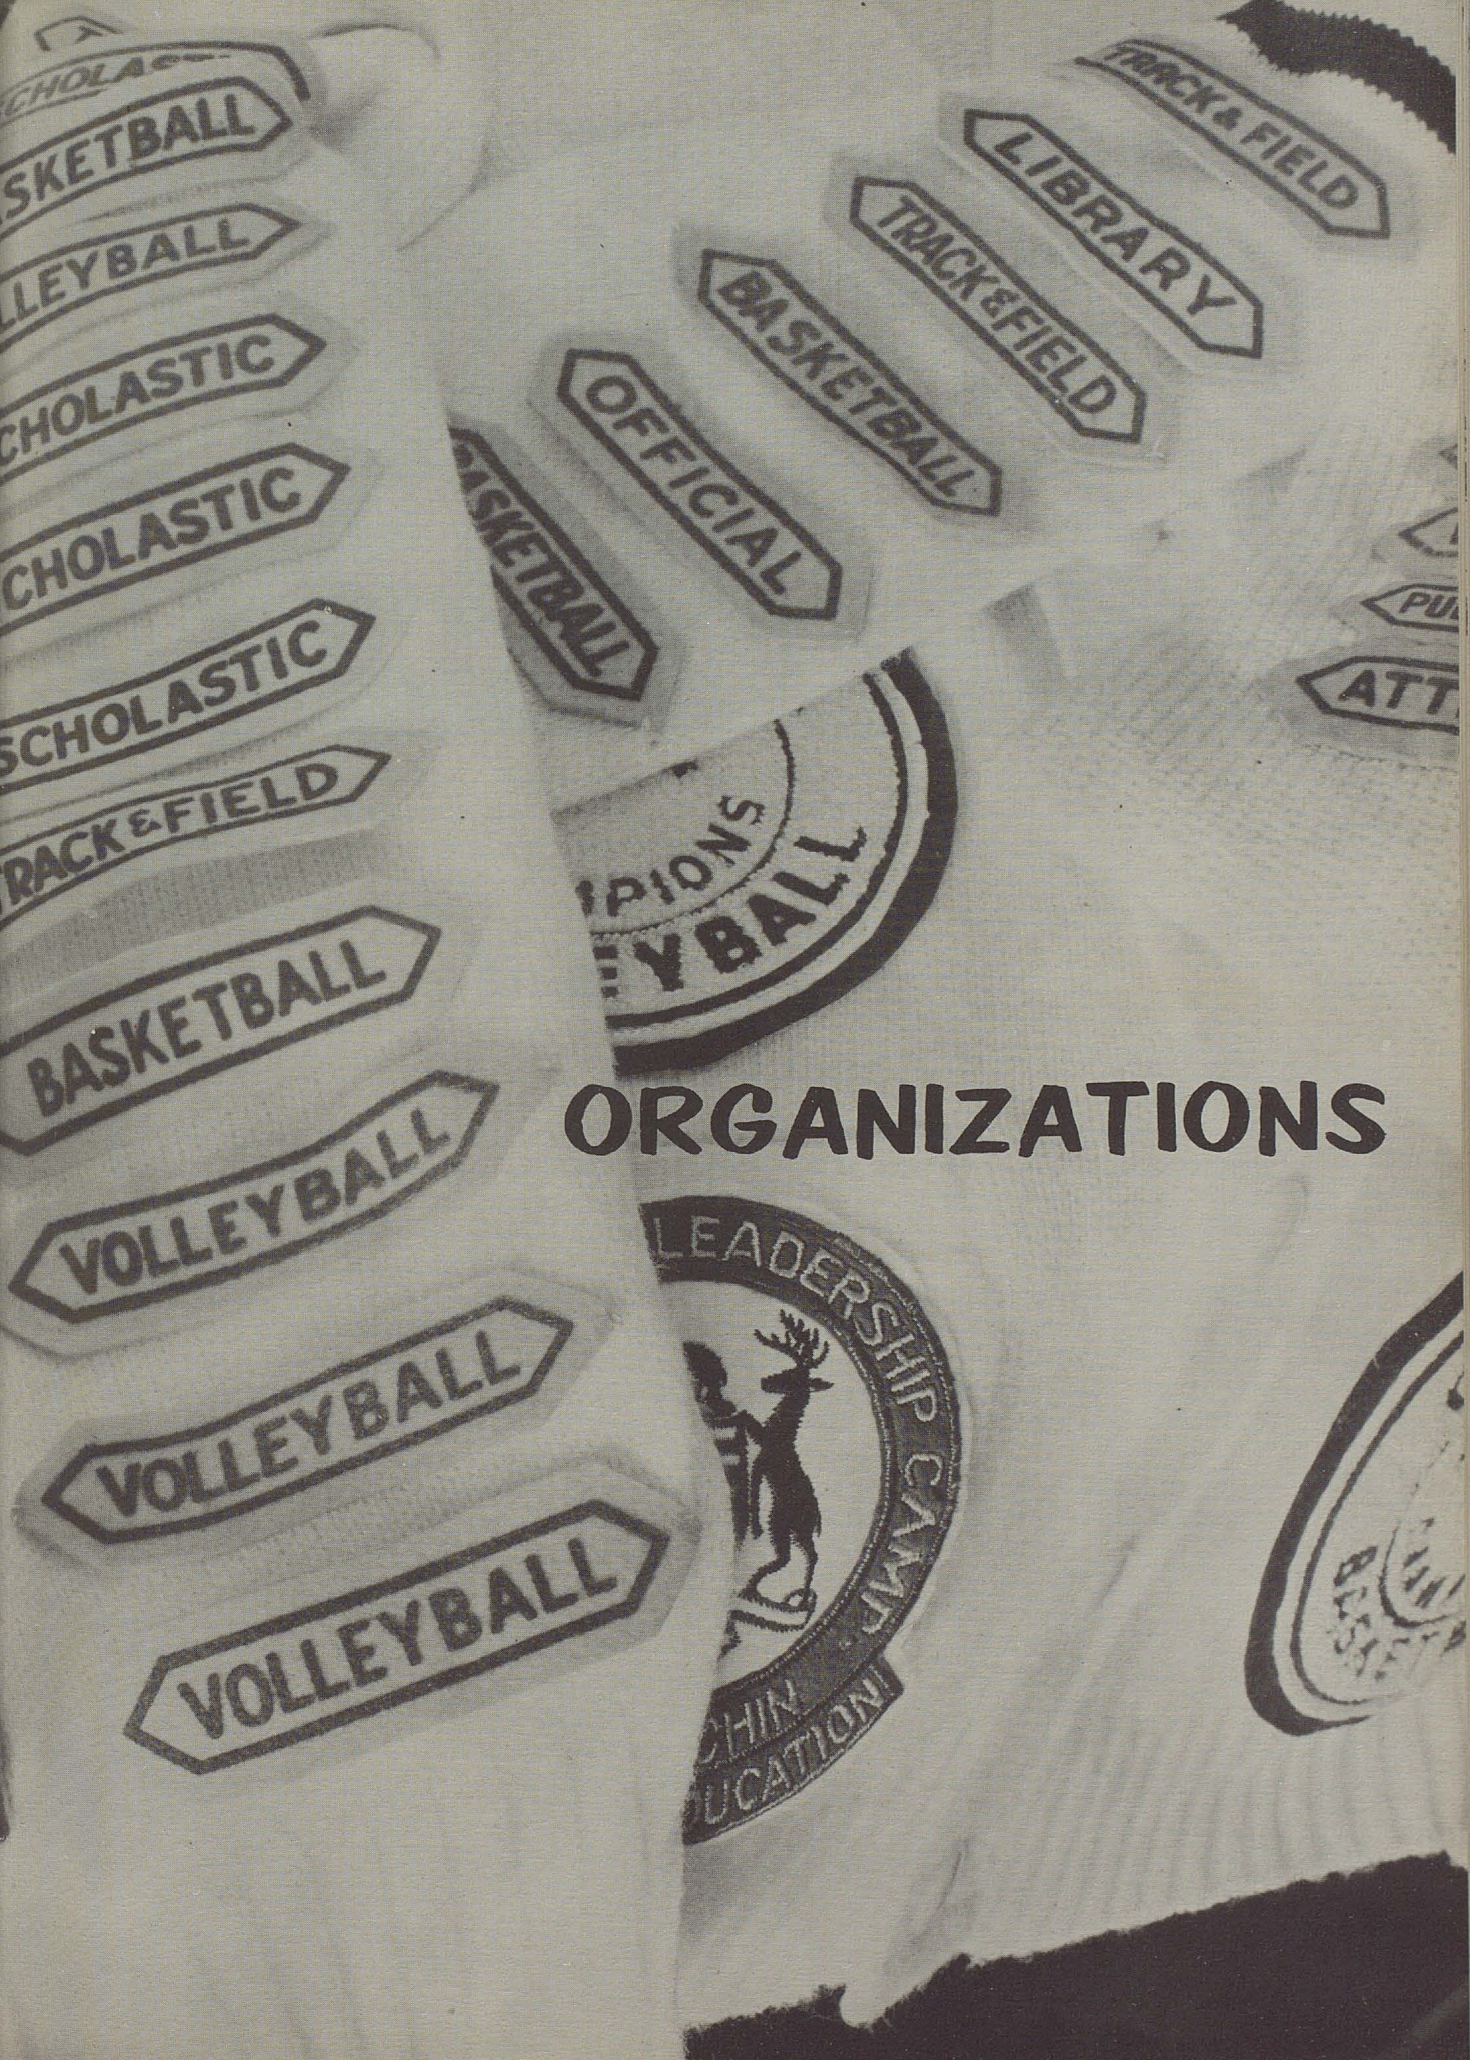

U. N. TRIP

Last November, along with seven other girls from the Windsor high schools and our chaperone, I flew to New York City to visit the United Nations. For the first half of our four day visit we were on our own and did all the things tourists normally do in New York. We saw the Statue of Liberty, Chinatown, Greenwich Village, Times Square, Rockefeller Centre, Radio City, and even found time to do some shopping. The last two days of our visit were spent at the United Nations.

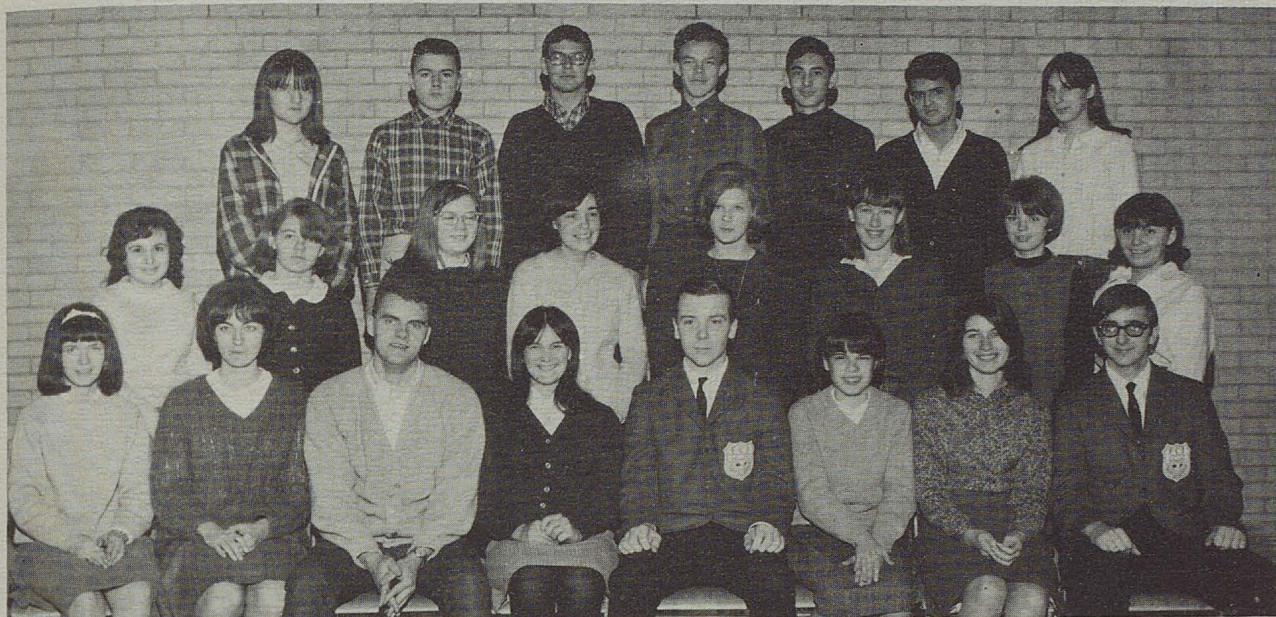

On our tour through the U.N. buildings, the guide pointed out to us the various contributions of the member nations. The seven nickel-bronze doors leading to the public lobby of the General Assembly building was Canada's gift. We attended two meetings of the Security Council on the question of Southern Rhodesia and two meetings of the General Assembly where we heard several nations, including the United States, expound their views on the admission of the Peoples' Republic of China to the United Nations. We even had lunch in the Delegates Dining Room. During our visit to the offices of the Permanent Mission of Canada to the United Nations, we talked with some members of the Canadian Mission, asking them all sorts of questions about what we had seen.

This trip to New York had made the United Nations seem more real to me. I learned several things about the U. N. One of them was what the ultimate objective of the United Nations is. This passage is inscribed in stone in a part of the United Nations Plaza:

"They shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."

Students' Council

THE ECCLESIA

This year the revised constitution was put into full practice. Five representatives from each grade level compose the student council. There are two terms in the Ecclesia year. A president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer are elected each term by the entire student body. Also each term a school spirit chairman, a cultural committee chairman and a dance committee chairman are elected by the student council.

The school spirit committee has the task of getting up the spirit of the school and keeping it up. This is often done by assemblies, pep rallies and half-time entertainment at the games.

The cultural committee is responsible for all assemblies put on in the school. This year, the student body has enjoyed many of the productions sponsored by this committee.

The dance committee sponsors all dances in the school. Its biggest achievement was the prom called "Chalet in Switzerland".

This year's Ecclesia hopes that next year's will do even bigger and better things for Forster. It also wishes to thank Mr. Steadman for his years of service to Forster and wishes him the best on his retirement.

Prefects

Under the direction of Mr. Mallender, the Prefects, this year, aided the teachers in such regular school functions as assemblies, dances and daily hall duty. The Prefects also took a helpful part in assisting at other special school functions including drama presentations and the band concert; however, the students are to be reminded that the Prefect Society can not function efficiently and uphold the constitution of the school without the consideration and, above all, the co-operation of the student body.

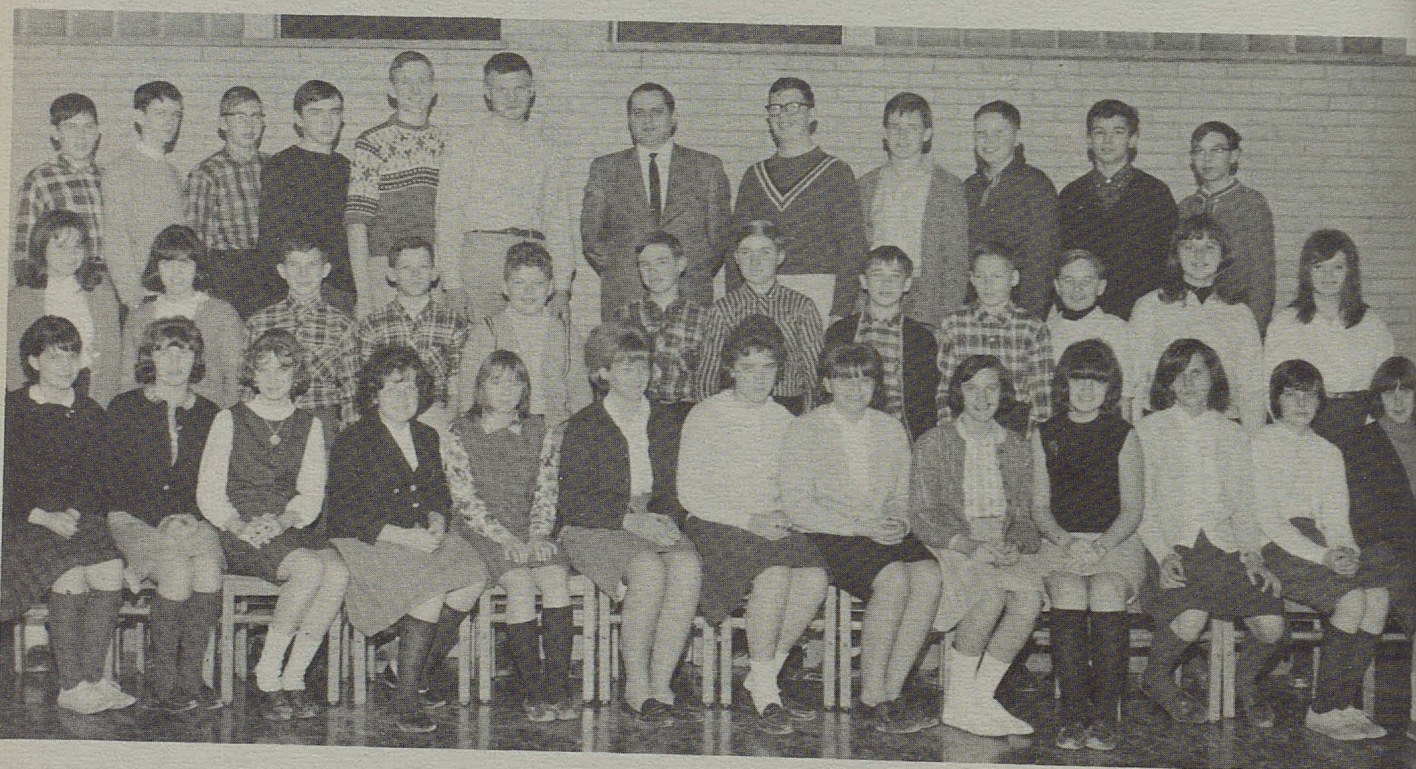

I would like to express my appreciation to the Prefect captains and especially Mr. Mallender for the leading roles they played in the success of the Prefect Society.

Robin Paulton,
Head Prefect.

Drama

Review:

THE DOLL'S HOUSE

There is a phenomenon known as a prestige play. When Robert Beattie took it upon himself to present this type of production, he also hazarded a comfortable, well-padded position.

The play is, in itself, a well-written, social-problem play. Yet it is hopelessly outdated for Forster's audiences.

The unthinking obedience of a nineteenth century housewife to her pompous, egotistical husband has obviously little, if any, appeal to to-day's theatre-goers. This will not go unnoticed and, in all probability, it will be a long time before a similar play is presented at Forster.

It is fortunate that the audience has no idea of what goes on backstage. The plain fact is that even though the play be good, the acting good, the work hard and the audience receptive, nothing can save a play that has comparatively no physical action or meaning for a youthful, modern audience.

Mr. Caversan, as Towald, the tedious, petty anti-hero, was just that and managed to carry this image through the greater part of the play. Miss Kulinski has always handed in at least a good performance and this time, she truly outdid herself.

The supporting cast, under the lead-weight conditions, turned in surprisingly good, steady performances. Yet even this could not save the tottering, accident-ridden production from almost collapsing under the pressure of obvious overrehearsal, apathy and outmoded expression.

For someone willing, however, to chew on the thick leather of Ibsen's dialogue and views and to digest the painful fare, it was worth while and at times, even stimulating.

This, of course, does not take into account the vigorous labour of publicity, directing, property, crew and cast people. But who does?

B. Taylor.

Cadets

Allen Conrad, Steve Day.

The cadet movement at Forster Collegiate dates back to 1940. It was then, under the leadership of Mr. T. P. Steadman, Mr. H. Brown, Mr. R. B. Whetstone, and Mr. G. F. Pew, that the first parade was held, with an enrolment of 200 cadets. After the affiliation of the cadet corps with the 2nd (Res.) Battalion, Essex Scottish Regiment, (now the 1st Battalion Essex and Kent Scottish Regiment), the enrolment has increased, until this year we have a total participation of close to 400 cadets.

The battalion headquarters consisted of Cdt. Lt. Col. Allen Conrad (commanding officer), Cdt. Major Steve Day (second in command), Cdt. Capt. Jim Pugsley (adjutant), and Cdt. W.O.I. Gary Burko (regimental sergeant major). Altogether 37 cadets trained in the officer and non-commissioned officer training courses held this year.

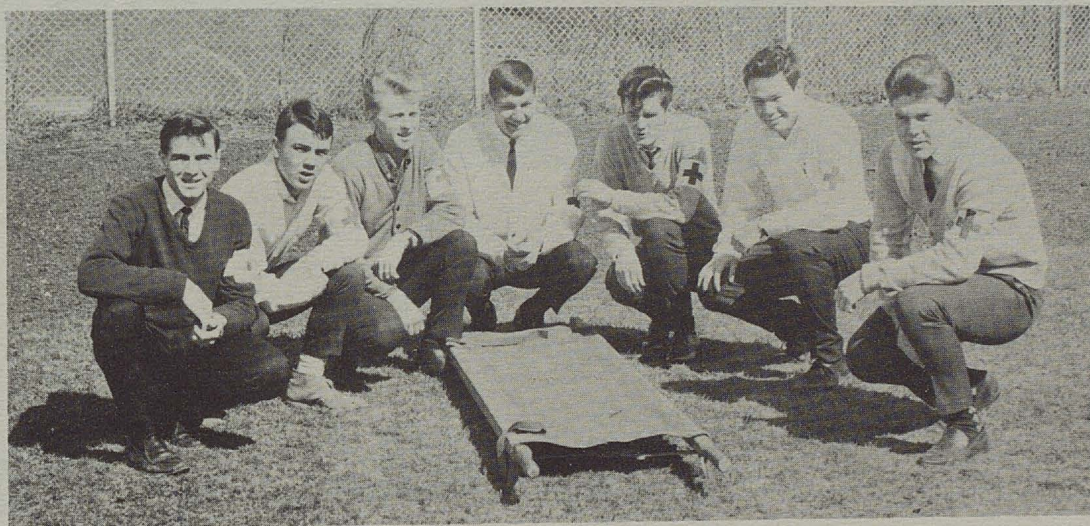

Special thanks goes to Major D. A. Mallender (chief instructor), Captain D. Skoyles, Mr. J.A. Sparling and the physical education teachers who devoted much time and energy to the training and administration of the Cadet Corps.

It's funny how a little piece of paper can put you in a whole new world

Getting your driver's license makes the whole world a brighter place to live in.

You can move.

Without pestering Mom or Dad to drive you.

Without depending on anybody else.

But now a lot of other people are suddenly depending on you.

Not for rides (although you like the feeling when you give somebody a lift).

But for their lives. And their property.

So don't take chances. Don't try to prove anything when you drive - except that you are qualified to do it.

In every way.

Depends on what you do with it! It could become a prize rooster, get top billing in a fricassee—or end up as a splatter on the floor. The possibilities are unlimited—the egg is just a start. Like university. You discover as you go along the endless possibilities an advanced education can bring. But you have to make a start—and not everyone can afford that. That's why the General Motors companies in Canada award 25 scholarships each year ranging in value up to $2,000 to help deserving students. More than 250 scholarships have been awarded since this programme began in 1955. Grants, too, are given to the universities themselves. Students can choose from any of 14 participating universities, pick the faculty they like, prepare in their own way to take their place in Canada's future. Life isn't always served sunny side up—but the GM scholarship plan can help.

Applications for General Motors Scholarships should be directed to the Registrars of the following participating Universities: The University of Toronto; The University of Western Ontario, London; Queen's University, Kingston; The University of Montreal; The University of Manitoba, Winnipeg; The University of British Columbia, Vancouver; The University of Saskatchewan, Saskatoon; The University of Alberta, Edmonton; The University of New Brunswick, Fredericton; Laval University, Quebec City; McGill University, Montreal; Memorial University, St. John's, Newfoundland; Dalhousie University, Halifax; and McMaster University, Hamilton.
